Old Church — New Life

14th October 2018

Present suffering, Future glory

Across the world brothers and sisters in Christ suffer for their faith, whether as victims of violence, or of harassment or intimidation. This has been the norm, for a good portion of the church's history. For the next few weeks we will look at 1 Peter, written to churches in what is now modern day Turkey suffering for their faith. The present suffering of these Christians and more importantly how they respond to it is grounded in Jesus' own suffering as their hope is grounded in the future glory Peter saw in the Risen Christ. Though suffering is not the norm in this country it's getting harder to be an orthodox Christian who takes their faith seriously so it is still relevant.

To understand the more difficult parts of this letter we must understand that Jesus' suffering is integral to living a faithful Christian life in the world. We do not counter suffering with violence or pay back but with courage and faith, enduring suffering for the name of Christ. It is this that was revolutionary and transformed an empire by the power of God. We also live that life in hope of what Christ will bring to completion on upon his return as he brings God's final judgment on sin, whether our own, others' and the worlds. Peter writes about these things in some more detail in 2 Peter, which we will look at over Advent.

Many thanks for your prayers for this years Synod. There was a motion of some concern but there wasn't enough time to discuss it.

Church Matters

Please don't be confused when you try to open the side gate to the church. It has been turned around so that it opens outwards from the back garden. This is in line with Occupational Health and Safety guidelines so that in an emergency it will work more efficiently to get people out. Thank you to Len Whyman who has worked on the gate to make it comply with the standards.

Thank you, also, to Fred Acott who has been working very hard to bring the church in line with safety standards. This includes the evacuation procedures, the creation of the muster point and the writing of the church procedures and policies.

There are further safety standards to be attended to in the area of food preparation where aprons, hats and gloves need to be worn. These will be kept in the lower cupboard by the back door. While I am on the subject of the kitchen, could I please ask that people check the cups before they put them away to make sure that they have been cleaned properly and no stains, no rings and no lipstick have been left? Could flower arrangers please make sure that vases are not left in the kitchen but are washed and put away in the cupboard in the vestry? Thank you to everyone for their assistance in this.

In Christ, Lynne Smith (People's Warden)
