I BELIEVE IN JESUS

This last Friday I watched a segment on the Today show discussing the Uniting Church's recent decision to abandon the words church and Christ in response to institutional abuse. I agree with Karl Stefanovic who said it's a cop out. Jesus is the reason we exist in the first place so in the face of the church's collective failings the last thing we should do is abandon Christ. Jesus did not bring the church into disrepute. Some of its all too human leaders did. The church's one hope for the future is Christ, the conviction we celebrate this Christmas that he is God's Son who left heaven to come and save us, who taught in word and deed of the call to live lives marked by faith, love, truth and grace. Today's reading from Isaiah reminds us of the character of our Lord and his leadership. It's that character the church needs to embrace anew; taking seriously the call to follow him in all we say and do. Then we will truly see God at work in our community!
